Catholic Schools Guide

Greg Campitelli
Publishing Editor

Welcome to Catholic Schools Guide, 2025 edition.
Each year, our Guide carries a different theme and this year it is 'Change-makers'.

Education plays a crucial role in shaping positive change-makers by equipping individuals with knowledge, critical thinking skills, and a sense of responsibility. It fosters empathy, broadens perspectives, and empowers people to challenge societal norms. Through education, individuals learn to identify problems, think creatively, and develop solutions that improve their communities. It also cultivates leadership qualities, ethical values, and a passion for justice and equality. Ultimately, education transforms individuals into active agents of change, inspiring them to contribute positively to society and drive progress for a better future. At Catholic Schools Guide, we think the future is an emerging and evolving landscape, like education itself, ever-changing and exciting.

Key Supporters

Special thanks to our fabulous major supporters which we encourage all schools to consider adopting - Enquiry Tracker; Bullyproof Australia; and anzuk Education. You will be amazed!

Feature Writers

This year's Guide sees an article by Justin Roberts, National Program Director ReLATE, The MacKillop Institute on the importance of supporting vulnerable students. Check out many other editorials on our website.

Artist in Residence Lua Pellegrini - Wiradjuri

The core value of our Guide rests in the continuous quest for change to search for greater equality and celebration of Australia's

First People. Our design team has now permanently incorporated motifs that pay homage to our extraordinary beautiful Indigenous cultural art. This is thanks to the work of a brilliant young Wiradjuri artist, Lua Pellegrini, who works closely with our production team to produce the stunning artwork you see.

"My cover artwork depicts our theme for the year - Change-makers. The artwork features colours that reflect the journey of life, the decisions we make, and the impact we can have on our future and others in our community. Aboriginal culture pays deep respect and wisdom to understanding our past in order to navigate our future."

WIN an AMAZING PRIZE - $2000 in School Fees!

Catholic Schools Guide are proud to present this year's competition and prize. Facts About the Guide

The Colleges choose to advertise in the Guide, there is no compulsion to do so. Importantly, the Guide is distributed free to families via the Primary School network. It is also available at most parishes and many childcare centres. The Guide is put together by a dedicated team. I am especially grateful to our sub-editor, Master of Applied Linguistics, Stephen Campitelli; senior production manager, Kristy Read; business development manager, Amy Pettifer; and the team at Ellikon Fine Printers, we simply could not put this magazine to press without their professionalism.

Caritas Australia

Catholic Schools Guide is proud to support the work of Caritas Australia. Our Guide encourages all readers to get their school involved in supporting the extraordinary work of this agency.

Dedication

This edition is dedicated to my Italian heritage - my father Arduino who at the age of 30 decided a new life beckoned from post-war Italy and led his entire family to a new land with a new hope.

He was a change-maker.

The Strength of a Catholic Education: Supporting Vulnerable Students

Justin Roberts

National Program Director ReLATE, The MacKillop Institute

Human dignity, social justice and preferential treatment for the poor are central to Catholic beliefs and social teachings. These principles are embedded in every Catholic school, shaping their mission and inspiring families – both Catholic and non-Catholic – to choose a Catholic education. They form the foundation of inclusive school communities where every child is valued and nurtured.

Many of our founders were true change makers, living out these values in remarkable and challenging ways. Daniel Delany risked persecution in Ireland to support vulnerable youth and create a more just society. Catherine McAuley defied societal norms in 19th-century Dublin, serving and educating marginalised women and children. Edmund Rice, decades earlier, broke barriers by providing free education to impoverished boys, dismantling systemic injustice. Closer to home, Saint Mary MacKillop and the Sisters of St Joseph lived among the poor and marginalised, providing education and enduring significant hardship to serve those most in need.

Their legacy endures in Catholic schools today where social justice and inclusion are integral. Students are often empowered as change makers themselves – championing justice, volunteering, and connecting with disadvantaged communities. However, the truest test of our commitment to human dignity and justice lies in how we adapt to support our most vulnerable students.

Responding to Vulnerabilities in Today's Schools

In today's complex world, schools face significant challenges. Mental health issues among young people are rising, with over one in five experiencing high psychological distress.¹ Over 60% of Australians have experienced some form of childhood maltreatment.² Added to this are the lasting effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, natural disasters and increasing inequities – all of which can manifest in challenging behaviours among students.

These behaviours are often misunderstood, but they reflect unmet needs. A student struggling with emotional regulation might display aggression or withdrawal, not out of choice but as a response to underlying trauma or stress. While these behaviours can strain relationships within a school community, they also present opportunities for growth and compassion.

Amid these challenges, Catholic schools continue to lead in innovative, compassionate education that embodies our values.

Change Making in Action

Through my work supporting schools across Australia to implement the ReLATE Education Model (focussed on building school cultures of safety, engagement and wellbeing), I see the extraordinary efforts of Catholic educators and leaders committed to fostering inclusive, trauma-informed environments.

For example, a small rural primary school resists external and internal pressures to exclude students struggling with emotional regulation. Instead, staff embrace trauma-informed practices, adapting to meet their students' needs while modelling resilience and inclusion.

In a large outer-suburb secondary school, staff work tirelessly to support students experiencing "school can't" (previously mislabelled as "school refusal"). Rather than pressuring these students or their families, the school collaborates with them to implement flexible learning approaches.

Then there is the mid-size metropolitan primary school focussed on supporting staff to recover from the stress of supporting students, ensuring that they are well prepared to continue providing safe, predictable and creative support to their students.

As Catholic schools adapt to meet the needs of their most vulnerable students, they show that inclusion, not exclusion, is the measure of true success. These actions remind us of our founders' courage and commitment to those most in need.

A Call to Compassion and Community

When a child other than our own is struggling, it can be tempting to seek their exclusion to protect others. While well-intentioned, such responses undermine the values that make Catholic education distinctive and meaningful. True change makers encourage schools to persist in supporting vulnerable students, recognising the profound impact this has on individual lives and the broader community. By working together – educators, families, and communities – we can ensure Catholic schools remain places of compassion and inclusion. These are schools where the vulnerable are actively welcomed, nurtured and empowered to overcome barriers beyond their control. Maybe, to meet the needs of the day, we are being called to go a step further and actively seek out vulnerable students, as many of our founders did. As Pope Francis reminds us, the stretching out of our hand is an essential step towards the creation of our "educating village."³

To fulfil this mission, we must embrace courage, holding fast to our commitment to vulnerable students, especially when challenges arise. This is our legacy, our calling and our opportunity to be the change makers our schools and students need.

Software that makes life better for schools and families – How?

Choosing the right school is one of the most pivotal decisions a family will make. It shapes a child's academic path and worldview. Naturally, this choice carries hopes, dreams and a touch of anxiety.

Yet the typical admissions process in primary and secondary schools often feels more like a series of logistical tasks—deadlines, school fairs, school tours and endless forms. It can feel disconnected from the deeper significance of selecting a school to align with a family's vision.

What if, instead of being buried in paperwork, families could experience a process that reflects the true weight of their decision?

This is the vision driving Enquiry Tracker (ET)—cloud-based admissions and marketing software, how schools manage enquiries and enrolments. By placing families, not schools, at the centre of the process, software like ET's turns what is often viewed as an administrative task into a family-focused experience.

Schools that adopt a software solution are no longer simply managing enquiries; they are offering families an engaging and intuitive experience that fosters a deep connection to the school's culture. The goal is to turn families into passionate brand ambassadors for the school before their child even starts.

The Top 10 Tips for all Schools to Manage & Grow Enrolments

1. Ensure your website is family focussed and uncluttered
2. Place 4 buttons on your home page each linked to:
 - a. Make an Enrolment Enquiry

3. Not all families speak English, ensure your forms can render in other languages
4. Offer group and private 1:1 tours
5. Ensure all staff are trained in customer service
6. Keep future families regularly informed via personalised emails
7. Understand if families are new, current or previous
8. Know if the parents are alumni or not
9. Commence a Student Ambassador program to assist with tours
10. Investigate software that can help!

A New Approach To An Old Problem

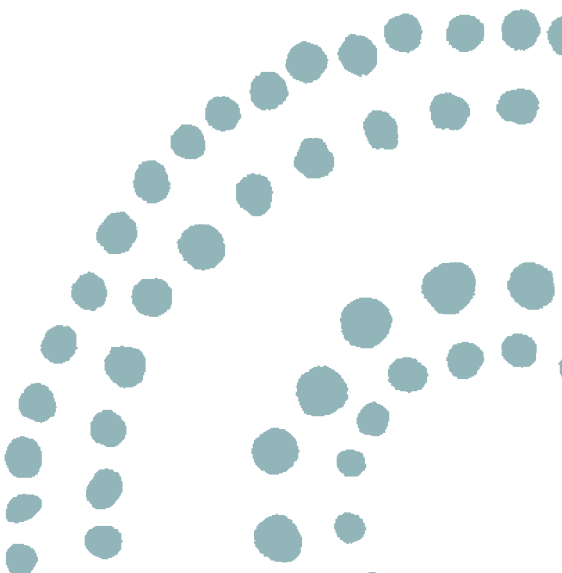

Bullyproof Australia's program offers a vital solution for schools to combat bullying, creating a safer, more inclusive environment for students. Conflict remains one of the most pervasive challenges in educational institutions, impacting the well-being, self-esteem, and academic performance of affected students. Despite efforts to curb this issue, bullying continues to thrive in many schools, highlighting the need for comprehensive, structured program.

We acknowledge conflict occurs in schools, but bullying can have long-term psychological effects on children. Targets of the behaviour often experience anxiety, depression, and low self-worth, which can persist into adulthood. These negative outcomes can also manifest in physical health issues and difficulties in social relationships. Bullyproof Australia's program helps address these problems by focusing not just on the immediate effects but also on prevention and long-term strategies to build resilience. Through education and early intervention, the program equips both students and staff with the tools necessary to recognize and address conflict before it escalates into bullying.

Furthermore, Bullyproof Australia's program is designed to empower students, teachers, and parents to work collaboratively. The program promotes open communication and fosters a culture of empathy and respect. Teachers are provided with strategies for recognizing bullying behaviours, managing difficult situations, and promoting inclusivity. The program also encourages students to speak out and take ownership of their actions, reinforcing the importance of kindness and respect in all interactions. By creating a strong network of support, the program ensures that the behaviour is not tolerated and that everyone in the school community is involved in creating a positive environment.

The effectiveness of Bullyproof Australia's approach is grounded in its evidence-based methods. The program is designed with input from psychologists, educators, and anti-bullying experts, making it a reliable and proven resource. Schools that implement the program report a reduction in bullying incidents, improved student morale, and a stronger sense of community within the school. In addition, it helps to create a more positive learning environment where all students can thrive, free from fear and harassment.

In conclusion, the need for Bullyproof Australia's program is evident in its ability to address bullying holistically. By empowering students, teachers, and parents with the knowledge and tools to tackle bullying, the program fosters a safe and supportive school culture. This approach not only helps reduce bullying but also ensures that students can focus on learning and personal growth, leading to better academic outcomes and emotional well-being.

CHANGE MAKERS

Ambrose Treacy College (ATC) brings the Charter for Catholic Schools in the Edmund Rice Tradition to a lived reality. With the EREA Touchstones informing the College Pillars of Learning, Leadership and Service, our community's point of difference is the genuine ethic of care for every person, where unconditional positive regard is celebrated. At ATC, we are called to be Signum Fidei, or a Sign of Faith in the world, which means to give voice to those who are not heard, and a place to belong for those who are not seen. Our values-based formation permeates what we do and is the essence of our young men who stand in solidarity with those on the margins. It is what we do and who we are. We are C.O.U.R.A.G.E - Compassionate, Optimistic, Upstanding, Respectful, Accountable, Grateful, Empowering. We are committed to justice for all, grounded in a spirituality of action and reflection. Our Leadership program promotes opportunities for every boy to develop leadership skills so they can be champions of change. ATC is an inclusive community that fosters right relationships, and every student is required to work in the community and give back because we know we are stronger together. Now, more than ever, we need young men to be gentlemen and a gentle man. We need young men who are empathetic, understanding and willing to listen to each other and 'be the change' the world needs.

CHANGE MAKERS

Iona College is certainly embracing the theme of change as we head into 2025. After an exhaustive review process to ensure absolute best practice is being delivered for our families, Iona will introduce a new leadership structure for 2025, including the key appointments of a new Deputy Principal, Dean of Senior Years and Dean of Middle Years.

This means more resources and even greater focus on the academic and pastoral needs of our students across all levels of College life.

As part of this, for the first time students in Year 10 will officially be recognised as "Senior" students, with greater areas of responsibility and leadership opportunities.

On a campus level, Iona will be changing as well - with new construction and expansion of facilities to meet the demands of our growing community.

In 2025, construction will begin on a new building in our Primary Precinct, which will deliver even more general learning areas and breakout spaces for our youngest students.

But what will never change at Iona is our commitment to a faith-based education that empowers young men to dare to make a positive, spiritual and practical difference throughout their lives and the lives of others.

Mr Trevor Goodwin
Principal

Has implemented a new leadership structure for 2025 to better serve the academic and wellbeing needs of our students and families.

CHANGE MAKERS

Today's world is changing more dramatically and faster than ever before. At SJFC we are preparing our students for this changing world and challenging them to be the types of change-makers we don't yet know about.

To prepare our students to be change-makers, our academic program is bringing new technology and curriculum initiatives into the classroom. By understanding how students can use technology to learn, we are providing them with the tool kit needed to adapt and thrive in a technological world.

We are an inclusive community where students live and learn with students from a variety of backgrounds. We want students who are global citizens, with a broad and accepting perspective of the world that will allow them to make positive contributions to society.

By bringing a Catholic lens to our learning, our teaching focuses on sustainability, humanity, dignity of all and care for creation, attributes that are constantly being sought in the wider community.

All of the programs on offer at SJFC challenge our students to foster a disposition of adaptability and flexibility. By nurturing the future change-makers of the 2030s and beyond, we are supporting the development of transferable skills that articulate into careers that haven't even been thought of yet.

CHANGE MAKERS

At St Patrick's College, we encourage every student to be agents of change and to stand in solidarity with those on the margins. By standing in solidarity as a community, we can break down the barriers that divide us and recognise the deep sense of community and connection that is at the heart of our humanity.

We teach our students that a changemaker can be anyone who imagines a better way, takes action and collaborates with others to create a new reality for the common good. Anyone at any age has the power to be a changemaker. Our world is in a constant state of change and today's youth are required to have skills and mindsets to navigate these challenges. St Patrick's College equips our students to show empathy, leadership, collaborative teamwork and resilience.

At St Patrick's College, we are heartened that so many of our students have taken up the call to be changemakers from our Umbarra students, to our Paddy's Van volunteers, our Waterford Waiters and the Paddy's Van Garden Club. Being a changemaker is a lifelong journey – a message we know St Patrick's College students will take away with them beyond the College gates.

Umbarra

In 2023, St Patrick's embarked on a new chapter with the official launch of Umbarra, a First Nation's student group.

Paddy's Van

In these increasingly tough economic times, the importance of the St Patrick's College Paddy's Van in the community has never been more evident.

Toast Room

Every Thursday morning volunteers serve a quick breakfast to the College community. There's no better way to start the day.

Immersion

Our immersions encourage our young men to broaden their horizons and walk in solidarity with those on the margins both locally and globally.

Paddy's Garden

The Paddy's Garden is run by our Junior students and all produce goes directly to the Paddy's Van and our New Street Cafe

CHANGE MAKERS

As we head swiftly towards 50 years of St Peter Claver College in the Ipswich community, it is only fitting that we acknowledge the change makers at Claver who make a positive impact, inspire and lead the way.

At St Peter Claver College, we take significant influence from three very important change makers: Our Patron Saints St Peter Claver, who was dedicated to serving those victimised by the slave trade; St Marcellin Champagnat, who founded the Marist Brothers because of his passion for education; and Jesus' mother Mary, who teaches us about unwavering faith, humility and devotion. The examples they set for us present us with the challenge to live out our motto of Concern, Love and Justice.

Through their influence we continue to embrace and celebrate our diversity, foster trusting relationships with members of our community, and deliver a quality, rich and diverse education allowing students to succeed academically while also pursuing special interest subjects, co-curricular interests and future career pathways.

Claver is a place to learn, grow, pursue passions and strive for success. We look forward to the next 50 years of educating Ipswich's young people who will no doubt become our future change makers.
